

Great Bear
NWT

THE NATURALIST'S ARCTIC CENTRE

POLARPAM

POLARPAM
6166

BATHURST INLET
LODGE

Who comes to

BATHURST INLET

BIRDWATCHERS

PHOTOGRAPHERS

NATURALISTS

ROCKHOUNDS

ARTISTS

Here's what they say.....

Bathurst Inlet Lodge, with its dedicated sponsors and its pleasant guests, opened the door for me to the finest wilderness experience I have ever enjoyed.

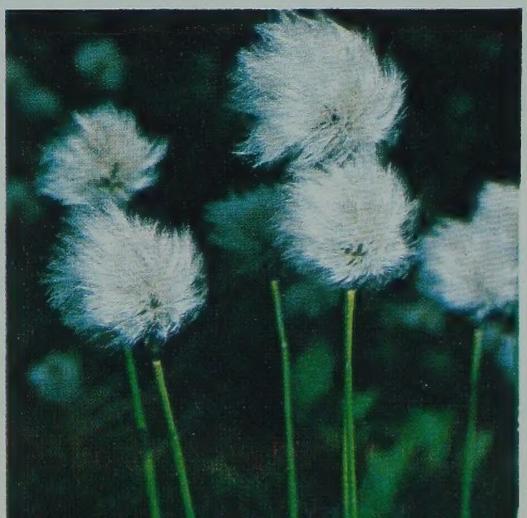

Al Hochbaum,
Delta Waterfowl Research Station.

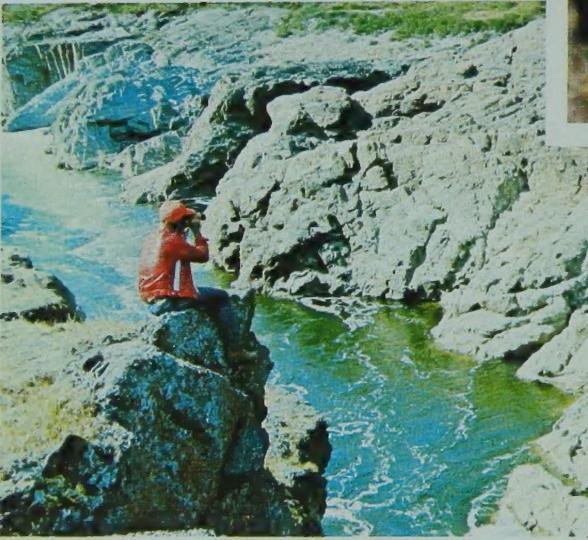

I certainly enjoyed my stay at Bathurst Lodge while working on my National Geographic assignment to study the wolves of the area. The endless beauty and variety of tundra plants, the magnificent scenery, and the Arctic wildlife, combined with the presence of the tiny Eskimo settlement and the coziness and friendliness of Bathurst Inlet Lodge made this one of the most interesting and enjoyable field trips I have ever been on.

Dr. L. David Mech,
Wildlife Research Biologist

If you want to savor the full range of summertime Arctic activity -- wildlife watching, angling, viewing scenic grandeur, and contact with Eskimos, I can think of no better way to do it than to make the Bathurst Inlet Lodge your headquarters and go out from there under the guidance of old Arctic hands.

Karl H. Maslowski
Naturalist Afield Columnist
The Cincinnati Enquirer

Arctic Flora

A world of color explodes under foot; delicate blossoms peek from between rocky crags as the Arctic tundra is basked in color.

Once free of snow in June, small shrubs of dwarf willow and Arctic Birch combine with grasses and flowers to clothe the tundra in unexpected beauty. Orange lichens cling to rocky ledges and help to conceal the veins of quartz and amethyst.

Fauna

Nesting Peregrine and Gyrfalcons, Rough Legged Hawks, Golden Eagles plus over 50 other bird species inhabit the area.

Musk oxen, Caribou, Arctic Wolves and Barren Ground Grizzly are among the animals raising their young in the area.

THE LAND OF THE MIDNIGHT SUN! A Naturalist's Dream

Breathtaking Grandeur

The Burnside River winds its way north to the sea dumping clear cool water over ancient quartzite to produce one of 3 scenic waterfalls near the lodge. Caribou trails parallel the banks and birds of prey make their nests on the rocky cliffs which cradle the anxious river.

Other, unnamed rivers boast waterfalls of over 100 feet high while smaller streams twist and turn in a beauty all their own. Eskimos have fished to feed their families for years near the mouths of these rivers and the remains of ancient camps, inukshuks (stone men) and meat caches, can still be seen.

The Lodge

Bathurst Inlet Lodge is situated on the Burnside River, where it flows into the salt water of the Arctic Ocean. It is operated by Trish & Glenn Warner who have spent twenty years in the North with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. There are noted naturalists in residence who are top birdwatchers, artists and photographers to give our guests every assistance. There are a selection of trips by water and land available each day to suit every wish, whim or physique. Special menus are available on request and the home cooking is guaranteed to please. Our maximum accommodation is eighteen guests who are assured of our undivided attention. Our many satisfied customers will recommend this exclusive arctic retreat. Please write for references. Everything mentioned is included in our listed price.

We have a variety of places to visit by boat and on foot. A day each can easily be spent visiting:

A picturesque double waterfall up the Burnside River. (Bears, wolves, golden eagles, etc. Fishing for Arctic Char, Lake Trout and Grayling).

Quadjuk Islands. (High sheer cliffs, very old Eskimo tent rings and food caches, caribou, nesting falcons and golden eagles).

Peregrine Point. (Eskimo burial ground where open type graves are still visible, nesting peregrines).

BATHURST INLET LODGE

Clothing & Equipment

The mean daily summer temperature is about 50 degrees and the equivalent of late fall hunting clothes is required. Long sunny days (up to 24 hours) are the general rule but a plastic raincoat or some type of waterproof clothing and footwear is essential.

Other equipment and supplies should include sunglasses and skin lotion for protection during the long hours of sunlight. Those interested in angling may wish to bring their own equipment, however tackle will be available at no charge at the lodge for those wishing to try their luck.

How to get to Bathurst Inlet

Regular jet service from Edmonton and Calgary will set you down in Yellowknife, the capital city of the Northwest Territories. Lodge personnel will welcome you and introduce you to a modern, active city.

Our rates include the charter flight from Yellowknife, north 360 miles to Bathurst Inlet and return. Pilots are the best in the business and are constantly on the watch for caribou and musk oxen herds to give you first hand viewing en route.

Camp directors, guides and the local Eskimos will be on hand to give you a royal welcome - northern, Canadian hospitality at its best.

Reservations
Write - Wire - Phone

Glenn & Trish Warner BATHURST INLET LODGE

1 Boffa Dr. - P.O. Box 820
Phone [403] 873-2595 - Telex 034-4-5564
Yellowknife, N.W.T., Canada XOE 1HO

Designed by
RAVEN GRAPHICS
Yellowknife

EXPLORE
CANADA'S ARCTIC
NORTHWEST TERRITORIES

Printed by
CANARCTIC
GRAPHICS LTD.
Yellowknife